Mons. Durand, under whose care they have been brought, deserves great credit, particularly so as the weather experienced on the voyage from Nagasaki was rough and boisterous. All the horses are from the stables of one regiment of Spahis, and were selected by the officers and a veterinary surgeon and approved by Mons. Durand who left Yokohama about two months ago for the purpose of purchasing them. As they have thriven well in the peculiar climate of Touquin it is reasonable to suppose that in Japan they will very much improve. Some days ago he went into a news stand and was caught with papers in his pocket which he had not paid for. The dealer would listen to no arguments, and Clark was arrested.

The prisoner was one of two men sent from the United States in 1870 to establish in Japan the postal service. At the time of his selection for this mission he was in the mail service in California, and prior to that had been Indian agent for the Pinte tribe in Nevada, during which he had disbursed, without suspicion, over $100,000. He had charge of the interior postal service in Japan for six years, during which time postoffice buildings were creeted at Yokohama, Osaka, Nagasaki and other cities in the country, and the railway mail service was established similar to that in the United States, except that there was no distribution on the trains.

On his return to this country, in 1883, Clark was appointed by President Arthur Indian Agent in Arizona, having charge of over 6,000 red men of different tribes. He retained this place till relieved by President Cleveland and then came to Detroit. There was no fault to be found with his accounts, although during his term in this agency he had handled $300,000 of the Government's money.

Clark's many friends here were astonished at his arrest for theft and flooked to his aid. He spent one night in the station-house, but was bailed out the next day. When the case was explained to the newsdesler he allowed it to drop. ATTEMPT TO WALK ACROSS THE NIAGARA.

WASHINGTON, 18th December. James C. Flood, on his recent visit to New York, bought ten of the best pictures in the city. He secured landscapes by Diaz, Dabiney and Corot, a cattle picture by Van Marke, a humorous subject by Vibert and the only Munkacsy that has been sold in this country. For the ten works that he picked up he paid $65,000. The matter of the purchase was kept very quiet in art circles in New York, and it is not generally known where these works have gone to.

VESSELS.

The nearer we draw to the shore. I see a great fleet on the ocean, With sails like the wings of the light; see it forever in motion.

As onward it speeds in its flight. And we are in ships that are sailing: Far out on the sea of the years; And turbulent winds in their waiting, Will beat till the haven appears.

Yet least are the days of repining-More often the joy than alarm, For light in its silvery shining, Is more than the cloud and the storm.

But rocks are in course of our sailing, And dangers are many and grave Yet each may with offorts unfailing, Find safety on billow and wave.

The Lord Christ can still the fieres tempest, And reach down the sinking to save-Can quell evil passions the strongest, And help us to walk on the ware.

But many go milm a the ocean To cross without amber or light, And tossed by the sea in its motion Are wrecked on the islands of night.

And many are broken with losses That lie in the depths of the sea; And many are weary with crosses Who would they thus buried might be. I hear on the waters low weeping,

For down in the isles of the years,

The purest and greatest lie sleeping.

And sorrow gives freely its tears.

But atronger is heard the sweet singing . That comes from the throng on the sea ; The years their full gladness are bringing, As though all wore joyous and free.

And nearing the haven we wonder How great is the city of light-The sorrowless city just yonder, Yet hid from our weak human sight.

We bear of its w. alth boyond measure, Its welcome for us at the door : Though offered to us all its treasure. We halting draw to the shore.
